

POINTERS ON THE RACES.

As Usual, Two Stake Events
Grace the Morris Park Card.

Rubicon Seems to Be a Good Thing in the Handicap.

EVENING WORLD'S SELECTIONS.

First Race—Dungannon, Prince Lamath, Inter Ocean.
Second Race—Little Billy, Halton, Old Dominion.
Third Race—Brandywine, Sabrina colt, Salvation.
Fourth Race—Rubicon, Sir Excess, Hornpipe.
Fifth Race—Fannie B., Glen Lily, La Paz.
Sixth Race—Helen Nichols, Hurlingham, Harrington.

As usual, there are two stakes to be decided at Morris Park to-day. They are the Champagne Stakes, for two-year-olds, and the Second Three-Year-Old Serial Handicap. In the former Brandywine, on his last race, seemed to have struck an easy spot. Rubicon looks a good thing in the Handicap, the going and distance being all in his favor. He carries a stiff impost, however, and concedes considerable weight to John Cou-per, Sir Excess, Peacemaker, Discount, Patrician and others.

A had lot of three-year-old maidens start in the first race, and a fair class of sprinters go in the second. Old Dominion, Little Billy, Halton and Will Elliot ought to show some speed. Two-year-olds of fair quality meet in the fifth, and Helen Nichols makes her appearance in the sixth against Hurlingham, Harrington and others.

The track will be heavy. The entries and selections are as follows:

First Race—Dungannon, Prince Lamath, Inter Ocean, 115 each, with $1,000 added, for maidens three-years-old and upward, one mile.

Dungannon looks the best of this very bad lot, and should win. Prince Lamath may be the runner up, and Inter-Ocean may beat the others.

Second Race—Three-year-olds and upward, one mile.

The World's Nearly
THAT INSRIPTION.

Two Translations from Widely Different Standpoints.

The melancholy Jacques, so we are told, "found sermons in stones." Had he, however, been condemned to listen to sermons on stones his melancholy might have been still further intensified. For such dissertations are occasionally wearisome even to the antiquarian; and when Edward Walcott, Fellow of St. Simon's College, Oxford, had listened to a long and prolix lecture on Roman villas he brought home a most interesting and valuable discovery.

His discovery was that the Association of British Antiquaries happened to be holding its annual conference on this occasion in the north of England. The venue was Burnstone Hall, a large country seat in Yorkshire. At the beginning of the present century some naves had discovered during the construction of a road, certain interesting Roman antiquities, and since then Burnstone Hall had been a Mecca to the archaeological enthusiast.

Former proprietors had encouraged research, but Joshua Platt, the present owner, a retired Lancashire mill owner, hated the whole thing, and regarded the archaeologist with ill-disguised contempt.

Nevertheless, being a chery old fellow of hospitable intent, when the association arrived in the neighborhood, he did not refuse them access to his park, albeit he had suffered considerable annoyance from archaeologists during the thirty years he had lived at Burnstone Park.

He even went so far as to order cold lunch for the first day, but he took care to be absent himself, and left his son Joe to do the honors.

Now, below Burnstone Hall there runs through a deep ravine of gray granite the River Burn, one of the very best trout streams in England. And as Walcott was a keen fisherman, he had been once asked, young Platt to grant him a day on his water. His host, being only too glad to find a fellow-sportsman, gladly assented. Accordingly, on this particular afternoon, while the rest of the association was still porting over tasseled pavements, Walcott fixed his cast and began to fish up stream. His reel was still empty, when suddenly the sky broke overcast, the leaves began to rustle ominously, and a heavy drop or two of rain warned Walcott that a thunderstorm was imminent.

Looking round for shelter, he saw in the scrap of the granite cliff that overhung the stream a cave, the entrance marked by a pile of stones. He lit a match—when, lo! his eye fell upon something that brought his heart into the
